BRITAIN'S NURSERIES RESTORE KIDDIES' SMILES

They Are Aiding Youngsters to Forget Horrors of Bombing

NOW BECOME CAREFREE

By Kathleen Harriman (I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

WENDOVER, England, Aug. 18.—(INS)—Two little girls were sitting in a Women's Voluntary Service evacuation center—blitz orphans being sent out to the country—some far off land for all they knew. They clung together and not for a moment would the older girl let go her sister's hand. During the long wait in London, all the way out on the train and even at supper at their new home, they hung on to each other.

When bedtime came, the matron broke all rules and put their cots side by side so that they could reach out between the bars during the night and feel safe. As she tucked them in, the older child said: "Please leave the lights on, Miss. His bombers always come when it gets dark. Please don't let it get dark."

There are lots of stories like this one roaming around London. Unexaggerated, horror stories of England's blitzed children. I saw two just such kids in a station at Plymouth. They reminded me of some scared bunnies I once kept in a cage when I was young. What is there for them to live for? Many have lost their families, their homes, their confidence in other humans, everything, almost their right to live.

Today I stumbled by chance on the answer to my questions. It is nice to know that even in war some stories can have a happy ending.

I was driving down through Buckinghamshire when I saw a lovely old village church. I have a passion for churches, particularly English country ones, so I persuaded my "means of transportation" to drive in. Somehow we took the wrong entrance and landed up at the Manor House front door.

We were about to back out the way we'd come when I saw a child, then lots of children, happy, carefree youngsters, running around under the trees. Was this one of the War Nurseries I'd heard so much about? A bright young matron appeared, answering my question. She seemed delighted to see an American and offered to show us the works.

We walked out to the front lawn. London's blitzed children! About 40 of them. I could hardly believe my eyes. These healthy little four-year-olds were running around the garden, playing with a few ramshackle toys and carts, as though they'd never known anything different. A plane flew overhead and I was the only one who looked up, concerned. Already they'd forgotten the war!

A short two months ago, when the nursery opened, these children were like the pathetic lot I've seen in London and Plymouth. At the sound of an engine, even a lorry, they'd run and hide under the shrubs and bushes and

Nazis Resume Air Blitz Tactics

LONDON, Aug. 18.—Germany for the first time in weeks resumed air blitz tactics with a deadly attack during the night on the port of Hull, but the Air Ministry today announced that the RAF struck with equal force against Bremen and Duisburg.

Authorities feared that the death toll at Hull may reach a high figure before all the debris is cleared away. In spite of the bad weather, 100 RAF bombers and a large protective force of fighters took part in the attacks on the Reich. "Many large fires" were reported at Bremen and Duisburg.

German Drive Slowing Down

MOSCOW, Aug. 18.—Russian military authorities today asserted that Germany's drive in the Ukraine appears to be slowing down due to fierce Russian resistance, while the Soviets are counter-attacking on the central front and holding their own in the north.

In an unsuccessful drive on the city of K— (not identified further), the Germans lost 20,000 men killed or wounded, the Soviet Army newspaper, Red Star, reported.

The Red Army, however, admitted evacuation of Nikolaev, major Soviet naval base on the Black Sea, and Krievog, iron and steel center in the Ukraine.

RAZE OLD LANDMARK AT BUCKS COUNTY INN

Stables and Wagon House Are Being Demolished As Part of Improvement

TO MAKE PARKING PLACE

DOYLESTOWN, Aug. 18.—The lively stables and wagon house, an old landmark of this borough, in the rear of the Bucks County Inn is being torn down by workmen. In its place a modern parking space for customers of the hotel will be erected.

The old stables, known by Doylestown's oldest residents, were erected many years ago. The front section or the newest addition which was used as a wagon house for years, was added by Charles H. Heist, who transferred the license of the hotel—then the Monument House—on December 12, 1898. Cattle sales were held in these stables for years, with buyers from many sections of the country in attendance.

The present management of the Bucks County Inn, Rudolph Hein, said today that, for the present, the huge lot will be used for parking purposes, but intimated that some day the site may be used for building purposes.

Razing of the old lively stables will add much to the improvement of the hotel property and other property in the vicinity.

Much of the seasoned lumber in the stables being razed is quite valuable, with dove-tailed beams and wood that has stood the weather test for years. Practically all of the material is being salvaged for other building purposes.

To Be Air Raid Warden Despite 86 Years of Age

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 18.—(INS)—Despite his 86 years, Julius Wiener was duly registered today for service as an air raid warden in Philadelphia.

Skeptical police put the aged man through impromptu tests and discovered his hearing and vision were remarkably good. Wiener, a native Czech who once served in the Bohemian Army, gave his age as 81 for official records, explaining:

"If I told them I was 86 they wouldn't have taken me. They don't want an old man like that."

the extremely sound doctrine that while many billions would be needed for defense it was essential that every non-defense expenditure be cut. With that practically everybody, except the ultra-New Deal group, was in accord. It seemed as clear that the President should be denied nothing needed for national defense as that every other appropriation should be reduced to the minimum.

IN a crisis such as he had outlined to the nation, nothing else made sense. Yet, the astounding fact is that not only did Mr. Roosevelt run counter to his own recommendation but Congress made no single serious move in that direction. On the contrary, while the latter enthusiastically complied with the tremendous defense demands, at the same time it cravenly yielded to farm, labor and other pressure groups, so that the normal non-defense expenditures for this and the next fiscal year are greatly increased instead of greatly reduced. For this there was some excuse for Congress

OVER 1200 ENLIST AS EMERGENCY POLICE FOR COUNTY DEFENSE

Thirteen Airplanes Are Placed At Disposal of County Unit

54 STATION WAGONS

An Appeal is Made For Volunteer Tomato Pickers

Over 1200 men have enrolled in the emergency police force of Bucks County Council of Defense unit, it was reported at a meeting held in Doylestown Friday night. Fifty-four station wagons have been listed as part of the motor squad, all being part of the emergency police set-up organized by Lt. Colonel Churchill Williams.

Volunteer tomato-pickers are badly needed by the farmers of Bucks county as part of the general national defense program, it was announced at the regular meeting of the Local Defense Council of Bucks county held in the Administration Building Annex at Doylestown.

Webster Shive, of Ferndale, representing the agricultural interests on the Defense Council, reported that the United States Government has urged all farmers to raise larger tomato crops, and in many instances here in Bucks county this is being done. Tomatoes, it was explained, are needed in Great Britain.

Anyone desiring to volunteer to help the farmers pick tomatoes can register at the Council headquarters in the Keller Building, Doylestown, where they will be assigned to farms. High school boys who might have a week or two of spare time before school opens, are especially desired to help out in this patriotic idea to relieve the serious farm labor situation.

Shive also informed Council members that the farmers would like to know what attitude the national government is going to take on limiting the Army service of farm boys to one year. The local Council will take up this matter with the Army heads in Washington.

The meeting was presided over by Thornton Lewis. Various committee reports were submitted and it was decided to eliminate the next regular meeting date and not meet until Sept. 12th.

It was reported that 9000 cards had been distributed among Bucks county women by the women's home defense unit as part of the organization of the women of the county.

Colonel Williams was appointed chairman of the newly-organized consolidated committee on refugees that has been formed in the Council. His associates include Walter Lewis, Doylestown; Mrs. Eberhart, Plainsboro; the Rev. Frank Damsch, Doylestown; Lester Shoemaker, Tullytown; Dr. Allen H. Moore, Doylestown, and the eleven chairmen of the districts.

WHAT BEFELL NAPOLEON

So much has been said about Napoleon's famous retreat from Russia in connection with Hitler's present invasion that recapitulation of a few facts is worthwhile.

Without declaring war and knowing that Russia had only 200,000 men under arms, Napoleon, in June, 1812, crossed into Russia with 600,000 men. Prince Barclay, head of the Russian army, slowly retreated, destroying food and other supplies. Koutouzov, taking over from Barclay as general, realized that Napoleon must be opposed to satisfy the Russian people.

Now near Moscow, Napoleon, through garrisoning captured territory, had only 130,000 men left for a battle. At Borodino where Koutouzov engaged Napoleon a full day's fight ended in a draw, the loss on each side being about half of those fighting. Next day Koutouzov, retreating, fell back on Moscow but did not defend it, veering to the south with Russian General Wittgenstein remaining north of the city.

Early in September Napoleon took Moscow. Repeatedly the Russians set it afire. There was no food. The French army was soon hungry and not controllable. Napoleon sent Murat to engage Koutouzov and Murat got licked.

Napoleon recognized he was in a trap and six weeks after his entry into Moscow, blowing up the walls of the Kremlin, he set out for home through winter weather. He had fewer than 20,000 men left when he got out of Russia.

TRANSITION

This country has been warned that it faces extensive changes in habits and customs owing to transfer of huge quantities of materials from consumer uses to war purposes. Many Americans have been unable to visualize these changes but they are getting a start in doing so in connection with impending curtailment of motor car usage and a probable lack of silk for general use.

Motor cars traveled 498,000,000, 600 miles in the United States during 1940. Any appreciable diminution of that mileage will greatly alter the American way of life. One-half of all car usage is to take people to and from work. Six out of seven cars are employed in family shopping. One of every five cars hauls children to school. The American motor car is integral in the relationship of doctor to patient, salesman to prospect, defense worker to his job, and the commuter to his employment in the city. Disruption of that relationship will produce a major transition.

As for silk, the industry is frantically seeking alternatives in hosiery, among them knee-length styles and cotton mesh hose-colored to attract the feminine—and masculine—eye.

GASOLINE CURFEW

The gasoline curfew banning night sales in Eastern states demonstrates that a sudden switch in the channels of customary commerce can have unexpected reactions.

One of the first effects of the filling station closing was a marked reduction in the sale of electricity. Filling stations are given to expansive and intensive illumination. In towns they are resplendent at night and on rural highways they shine afar.

ECHOES OF THE PAST

By Courier Staff Member

Review of the news as it appeared in the Bucks County Gazette issue dated at Bristol Nov. 20, 1879. The Gazette, a weekly newspaper published in Bristol, was discontinued following its merger with the Courier.

By the account kept at the Bristol post office of mail matter deposited for transmission in the mails during the first week in this month, the following has been furnished us: Total number of first class matter, letters and postal cards, 2596; second class matter, newspapers, mailed to subscribers by publishers or news agents, 2366; transient newspapers, 392; fourth class, merchandise, 19; total of all classes, 5283.

Between $10 and $20 was stolen on Sunday evening from the residence of Rev. Mr. Lee, of the Episcopal Church. The money stolen was part of a church collection. The perpetrator of the theft seems to have known just where to look for the money, and the exact time when it would be safest to secure it.

Invitations to the reception of Hermione Lodge, Knights of Pythias, tomorrow night, have been extended to Bridesburg, Newtown, Morrisville and Hultsville members of the order, and it is expected that the parade will be an attractive one. The festivities will end with a supper in Washington Hall.

The Y. M. C. A. of Hultsville held meetings during the whole of last week, which proved very interesting and profitable. On Thursday evening, Rev. W. H. Conrad and Mr. Peter E. Hope, of Bristol, delivered addresses, and on Saturday evening Professor Krichbaum was one of the speakers.

Some prize fighters, regular bruisers, some of whom are said to have achieved the unenviable reputation which results from eminence in the prize ring, came to Bristol on Monday night intending to give a sparring exhibition at Cabene's Hall. But owing to the fact that the clerk of council, J. Wesley Wright, would not allow them a license for the exhibition, they returned to Philadelphia disappointed and disgusted with the way things are managed in Bristol.

Miss Merriam, of Bristol, presided at the November meeting of the Morrisville Auxiliary Missionary Society.

A union Thanksgiving service will be held in the Baptist Church next Thursday morning. Rev. Dr. Cunningham of the Methodist Church will preach the sermon.

On Thursday, while Benjamin Hiestand's men, Jonas Martin, A. H. McClintock, and Thomas Scott, all of Doylestown, were slating the roof of the new chapel at Newtown, the scaffolding gave way and precipitated them to the ground. They were seriously injured.

Samuel H. Trauger, a native of this county, but for the last 44 years a citizen of Ohio, died at his home in Richland County, the 7th of November, in his 85th year.

An incredulous item is going the rounds of a vein of silver and copper ore having been found in Bucks County. Unfortunately the exact locality has not been announced.

In the triennial assessment of property in Newtown township, the rate has been placed at $2 an acre less than last year.

The Bristol Institute met on Tuesday evening. The program was as follows: Piano solo, Miss Fannie Barlow; essay on "Botany," by Miss Louisa Iredell; vocal solo, "The Old Sexton," Mr. John Ridgway; recitation, "The Keeping of the Bridge," by Frank P. Adams; portfolio, part first, read by Miss Gileson; piano solo, by Miss Eva Swain; portfolio, part second, read by Miss Bostwick; vocal quartette by Misses Wells, Swain, Barlow and Laing. Mr. Ridgway and Miss Eva Swain, as well as the quartette, were encored.

But for the illness of Archbishop Wood, confirmation services would be held at St. Mark's Church next Sunday morning. Next Sunday week, however, it is hoped that the Archbishop will be able to present, when the rites of confirmation will be administered to a large class, mainly of young people.

The creditors of the defunct Newtown banking company will probably consent to divide the funds in the hands of the assignee, all round pro rata.

Attractive Wedding In Newport Chapel

Anderson, daughter of Mr. Howard Anderson, of Philadelphia, became the bride of Mr. Joseph P. Wilkinson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wilkinson, of West Bristol.

The double ring ceremony was used. The bride party entered the church to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march, with Mrs. George Mohr as the organist.

The bridesmaid was Miss Doris Wilkinson, sister of the groom, and serving as best man was Mr. Harry Wilkinson, Jr., of Burlington, N. J. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was attired in a gown of white bridal satin having a fitted bodice with sweetheart neck, short puffed sleeves, and flowing skirt with train. Her veil of net was attached to a tiara of pearls. She wore white gloves and kid pumps and carried a bouquet of bridal roses and baby breath.

The bridesmaid wore a gown of pink taffeta made on similar lines with tight fitting bodice. Her hat was made of pink net, trimmed with forget-me-nots. Her accessories were white. She carried pink roses and baby breath with a touch of blue.

A reception was held after the ceremony at the Wilkinson home. The guests were the immediate families and a few friends. Mr. and Mrs. Wilkinson will reside in Passaic, N. J.

The wedding was the first since the organization of the Newport Road Community Chapel in 1927.

SYNOPSIS

Aboard a ferry, enroute to visit his fiancée, Jane Rider, David Farland prevents an attractive young woman from jumping overboard. The hysterical girl entrusts him with an envelope, requesting that he deliver it to the socially prominent Richard Garrison, if she does not call for it within a week. Noticing a couple watching them, the girl's eyes dilate with fear. "I knew he wouldn't play fair!" she exclaims and dashes away, dropping a compact initialed "C.B." and a pamphlet entitled "Americans, Warning!" On the train, David discovers the envelope is missing from his pocket. At her home in Haverstraw, as Jane prepares to meet David, her thoughts go to Kurt Helm, the writer, who rented the old log cabin nearby. At first he had been fascinating, but last night he had changed shockingly. "I shouldn't have come to this place," he said. "Lean people living on fat lands, thinking of nothing while the world blows up around them." Then he went on to threaten to take Jane away from David. At the station, David sees the mysterious woman again. He asks Jane to follow her taxi, but they lose sight of it. Running out of gas, they walk to a nearby garage where they encounter Mat Breanu, the Broadway big shot, and his friend, Fan Rubley. David accidentally pulls the mysterious lady's compact from his pocket. Breanu snaps it up. "How did you get this?" he growls. The stubborn David refuses to tell. Breanu returns the compact to David with, "Give me or Dick Garrison a ring, Monday." Garrison! That was the man the girl on the boat requested him to contact. Returning to Jane's home, the young couple stop at a little railway station store, where David encounters the man and woman he believes stole the envelope. A fight ensues, but the mysterious pair escape. David shows Jane the "Americans, Warning!" pamphlet. She suggests the elusive lady may have been a spy.

CHAPTER SIX

"I ought to have brought my flashlight," Jane murmured. She groped along beside David to where they had left the coupé under the trees.

It was a long drive. David kissed her, as they reached the short, winding road near her home. The windows of the old brown farmhouse were lit. Lanterns flanked the front door. Timmy streaked for the car, barking. He wriggled adoringly around David and Jane.

"Mo-ther!" Jane cried, her heart light again.

Kurt Helm, in baggy tweeds, followed her mother to the car. He looked subdued, friendly, his fair coloring greenish in the glow of the car lamps. But Jane felt his eyes intent upon her, as if his mood of last night was not yet over.

"Well, children, I was beginning to worry," Mrs. Rider's voice sounded relieved.

"Gee, it's good to be here, Mother Rider!" David hugged her. "What did I do with my bag?" He started for the car.

"You put it in the rumble seat," Jane reminded him. She avoided Kurt's persistent stare.

David moved alert

Pastor, Bristol Presbyterian Church

Our Father in Heaven, we praise Thee, the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, Who is the great Shepherd of the sheep, that when all we, like sheep, had gone astray, Thou didst lay upon Him the iniquity of us all. Forgive us our sins, we pray Thee, in His Name. Show us our need for Thee, how great it is; not only for deliverance, but also for daily grace and guidance. Lead us into the green pastures of Thy love and mercy, and give us to drink of the waters of everlasting life. Through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

ON THE SCREENS

GRAND THEATRE

That army of film fans which idolizes Clark Gable will find plenty to applaud him for in "They Met in Bombay," which opened yesterday at the Grand Theatre. Gable, with Rosalind Russell as his able co-star, is obviously in his element in this stirring romantic saga of adventure in the Far East. The picture is vital and arresting throughout in capturing the authentic flavor of the colorful Orient while highlighting the actionful adventures of its principals.

Those same fans will be amazed, no doubt, to find their hero in the suave role of a gentleman thief at the opening of the story. The part is a departure for Gable, although it may be remembered that he did extraordinary work as a gangster early in his film career, a factor which helped to earn him stardom.

Miss Russell surprises also by dropping the screwball comedienne tactics which of late have served to identify her versatility. Here she assumes a forthright romantic role, which it does present her in the guise of a feminine Raffles with no more conspicuous moral scruples than Gable displays at the outset.

Both, meeting the challenge of something new in their screen lives, do superlative work which will elevate their prestige with a film-going public through both individual and collaborative work.

The story of "They Met in Bombay" is an arresting one, contrived under the producership of Hunt Stromberg, and ably directed by veteran Director Clarence Brown. It is lavishly couched in believably authentic atmosphere of the Orient, ranging from Bombay to Hong Kong. Scenically it is absorbingly interesting.

BRISTOL THEATRE

Bob Hope and Dorothy Lamour, who co-star in "Caught in the Draft," which opened yesterday at the Bristol Theatre, are both thankful to Buddy DeSylva, Hollywood's outstanding showman of the day.

To begin with, Mr. DeSylva is strictly unconventional which accounts for his granting Dorothy's wish—no more sarongs! He clothed the screen's best "undressed" woman with no less than 22 different costumes, despite the scores of frantic pleas from the "La-mour Sarong Fan Clubs."

RITZ THEATRE

The motion picture screen is taking ocean voyages for the public these days. Furthermore, all of these cinematic sailings are being made to and from South America, a course deliberately adopted to make the stories timely.

OUTSTANDING FIGHTERS BOOKED FOR SCHEDULED BOUTS AT ST. ANN'S ARENA

Several fighters who would be the wind-up fighter of any program, will appear in the St. Ann's Arena tonight as the St. Ann's organization presents its weekly amateur boxing show. Among the fighters are a national A. U. champion, a Middle Atlantic A. U. champion, and a Philadelphia A. U. champion and, incidentally, the three will be matched with boys from this area.

Berly Lenire is the national champion and he is matched with Clem Kinsey, colored Diamond fighter, who has scored knockouts in his only two appearances here. Kinsey was among the leading fighters in a tournament in Trenton and since coming here has been a big favorite with the crowd. Lenire has fought the best of them in the amateur game. Several weeks ago he was introduced from the St. Ann's ring and he practically challenged everyone in the 160-pound class. The challenge was accepted by Kinsey who holds no fear for any fighter.

The Middle Atlantic crown-holder on the card is Richard Debnay, of the Eastside Club. He is booked to fight the scrappy Al Turner, of Diamond. Turner has lost but one fight in two seasons and appears to get better as he progresses. Debnay possesses a murderous right hand, while Turner is the boxing type of a fighter, not having a knock-out blow but can cut you to pieces.

Sante Malizia, Philadelphia champion, is booked to meet Obie Glover, newly-acquired St. Ann's fighter. Glover, a 150-pounder, is a Yardley boy and is making his debut against one of the best. The colored Yardley fighter has been in training for three weeks and has requested a bout to get his start.

Carmen Orrino, Selbold fighter, who seems to get better in every fight, is re-matched with Willie Krudup, Main Line boy. Orrino beat Krudup and is angling for a bout with Frank Lowry or Clem Kinsey. He will get his chance with either boy if he succeeds in setting aside Krudup tonight.

Joe Dugan, Diamond fighter, will shoot for his fourth straight win against George Coles, East Side, and Leonard Harris, Mt. Holly youth, is booked to meet George Duffy, also of East Side.

Harold Lenire, brother of the champion, Berly Lenire, who also fights for the Wharton Club, is fighting LeRoy Grabs, of the Main Line A. C., while in the other bout, Dave Montgomery, Diamond, is meeting Harold Davenport, of the East Side team.

First bout is scheduled for 8.45 o'clock sharp.

lie there whimpering. It would take more than gentle coaxing to get them out in the open again. Now look at them!

Bombing affected the children in two ways, the matron told me. Some cried all the time, while others just sat in a daze, staring into the distance—like hypnotized wild animals. These latter ones, she said, take a longer time to forget.

"But you see they're all right now." She had reason to say that proudly.

Being a warm sunny day, lunch was served out of doors, at miniature tables for two and four. The children sat down without fuss and chattered away happily, each waiting his turn to go get a plate of stew. There was no crying or monkey business. These children had learned manners.

I noticed one child sitting with his arms crossed tightly around his chest. He grinned and then looked hopefully towards the almost empty stew dish.

"He wants a second helping. I've taught them to cross their arms when they want more." I thought of some of our American nursery schools and the general pandemonium and shouting at meal times. This woman had educated these children in a short two months, starting from scratch. Few had ever bathed regularly before, let alone been taught by their parents to eat neatly with a spoon and fork.

"They take to it quickly. They seem to like being clean and I think they'll miss their nightly bath when the time comes for them to go home."

Then the matron told me about the mothers. They are encouraged to visit and many come down on Sundays. To make it easier for them, the government allows them a reduced transportation rate. It makes the children happier and less afraid. They realize that their parents know where they are, that they aren't lost forever. Actually seeing a mother is far more reassuring and comforting than being told by the nurse that "mama says in her letter—"

Besides, the War Nursery matrons aren't afraid that mothers will come and demand to have their child back. Few do. Once a mother has watched her child's carefree play, seen him well looked after and well fed, she can't help but go home satisfied that her child is better off in peaceful country surroundings. He's getting something far more vital than mother's love.

It takes ingenuity to make over an old English house into a cheerful nursery school, particularly when little money is allowed. But the matron has what it takes. The house was nicely fixed up. Colorful children's pictures helped cover the mouldy cracked walls. Flower vases were everywhere. Even the tooth mugs and coat hooks were painted with animals.

Each bedroom had at the most seven cots, but they aren't going to make room for any more children. Take more than 50 or 40 youngsters into one nursery and it would lose its personal touch.

On the way out the matron pointed out a framed diploma-like notice in the front hall. The names Waifs and Strays Society and Women's Voluntary Service for Civil Defense were on it, but heading the list came the American Red Cross. Hardly a week goes by without a new nursery being opened, made possible by American money and supplies.

I suddenly realized that taking time out to show me around her nursery was the one way the matron could show her appreciation for what the United States is doing towards helping these children have a happy ending to their pitiful bombing stories.

I never did get to see the church!

The Great Game of Politics

—though not much. In addition to having no White House leadership, it had the very bad example of a President whose acts nullified his words.

—O—

TO those who have been concerned over the increasing unsteadiness of the Federal financial structure, as year by year debt and deficit piled higher and grew deeper, the situation hardly could have been worse. Recognizing the unintelligence of stinting (and not desiring to stint) defense funds, they were appalled —first, by the refusal of both Congress and the Executive to retrench in the obvious and indicated directions; second, by the inadequacy and unsoundness of the tax program. With all restraint removed and no brakes holding, it certainly looked as though the runaway could not be stopped short of the terrible and inevitable bump at the bottom of the hill.

—O—

AND then, suddenly, last week the Senate Appropriations Committee, by unanimous vote, cut a billion and a quarter dollars out of the Administration's first supplemental defense appropriation bill for the new fiscal year. Part of the cut was, to be sure, restored later on. The Senate itself accepted the committee's reduction, but on appeal by the Secretary of War while the bill was in conference resulted in an agreement to put back $750,000,000. Even with this restoration, however, the final bill was some $500,000,000 below the original request. The full significance of this seems not to have been grasped. It is the first time that any big defense appropriation has so much as been questioned. It is the first time an appropriation committee has failed promptly to approve a Presidential request made in the name of defense. It is the first slash made in a major defense request for either Army or Navy.

—O—

WHAT does this mean? It seems to mean that there is a limit beyond which blind compliance will not be carried. It seems to mean that a sense of responsibility is about to be regained and that the rubber-stamp days for defense appropriations are over. The grounds upon which the cut was made were that the Army had lost all sense of proportion—that, taking advantage of the situation, it was asking for fantastic sums for unneeded purposes. This may or may not be true, but it is a fine thing to have a Senate committee call a halt and compel the Army, the Navy and the President to justify their requests for these enormous sums, made on the heels of other enormous sums already granted. No doubt it is a temptation to grab all they can while the grabbing is good, but it is certainly in the national interests to scrutinize these demands and question their necessity.

UNQUESTIONING acquiescence is a silly thing to continue indefinitely. It is gratifying that as important a part of the legislative machinery as the Senate Appropriations Committee has so self-respectingly said so. No intelligent person wants the defense effort cramped for lack of funds. No reasonable man expects all these billions to be spent in unavoidable haste without great waste. Nevertheless, the waste in army construction and in the defense organization is beyond reason and without excuse. The Appropriations Committee did a fine thing in calling a halt. It will be worth while if the only effect is to force the President and the departments to justify their requests instead of assuming that all they have to do is to make them. It would be finer still if, with the same ruthlessness, the committee could operate on a lot of non-defense appropriations. Perhaps it will. The name of its chairman is Carter Glass.

Resume Production At Big Mack Truck Plant

ALLENTOWN, Pa., Aug. 18.—(INS)—Vital production of tank transmissions and army trucks for Britain and the United States was resumed at full speed today by 4700 employees of the Mack Manufacturing company following settlement of a week-long strike at the Allentown plant.

The majority of 2,000 union members voted to accept an agreement giving them a wage rise of six cents an hour effective today. It was announced by Albert Zankl, international representative of the CIO's United Automotive Workers. A $677,000 yearly payroll increase is involved.

Compromise terms were worked out in Washington at a 13-hour meeting between delegates of company and union and a panel of the U. S. Conciliation Service. The strike was called last Monday over a disagreement concerning the effective date of a wage increase.

Mack employees turn out six-wheel trucks for army service and 8,000 pound transmission units for virtually every medium tank manufacturer in the United States and Canada.

Germany Resumes Offensive

LONDON, Aug. 18.—Germany has resumed her offensive against Leningrad, striking along the railroad from Tallinn, Estonian capital. British authorities said they were advised today.

Reports that the Germans are using from one million to 1,500,000 German and allied troops in the Ukraine, in addition to four to six Panzer divisions and air support also found general confirmation.

Defenses of Odessa were described as sound. Although the city is cut off by land, British officials understood it is not being evacuated, and the possibility was suggested that Odessa may become "another Tobruk." British troops continued to hold Tobruk although the Libyan port has been isolated by land for months.

HARRISBURG, Aug. 18.—Pennsylvania's relief rolls resumed their downward trend during the week ending August 9th, when 204,466 persons received assistance. Secretary of Public Assistance Howard L. Russell announced today. Employment in private industry was again the principal factor in the decline.

Big Dam is Nazi Objective

BERLIN, Aug. 18.—The immense American built Dnieprostroi Dam, which controls power production and traffic on the lower Dnieper River, and Kherson, gateway to the Crimea, today were named as the immediate objectives of the German drive through the Ukraine.

Lulls, it was admitted, have set in on the central and northern fronts, and it was conceded further that the retreating Red Army is drawing new lines east of the Dnieper for another determined stand.

Russian forces, the Germans said, staged a series of counter-attacks in an attempt to recapture the Ukrainian iron center of Krivoi Rog, but all were repelled with heavy Red losses. Eighty-seven Soviet tanks and 52 guns were reported captured in the fight.

Following the capture of Nikolaev, one of the most important Black Sea ports, Herson, near the mouth of the Dnieper 45 miles southeast of Nikolaev, already has been cut off, German military authorities said.

Nazi military officials said the capture of the Dnieprostroi Dam—"the Boulder Dam of Russia"—even if it is taken only half-way intact, will prove one of Chancellor Hitler's richest prizes.

President Consults Leaders

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—Congressional leaders were called to the White House today by President Roosevelt to receive a report on the Chief Executive's momentous high seas conference with Prime Minister Churchill and the British War Command.

In turn, the President is expected to inquire into the temper of Congress, both houses of which during his absence made arrangements to take what amounts to a month's recess, leaving urgently requested defense legislation hanging in mid-air.

The President returned to his desk confronted with a number of problems of the first water, both international and domestic. During the day decisions were anticipated on:

1. The course this government will pursue to get over 100 Americans held as virtual hostages, from Japan.
2. The question of Federal seizure of the Kearny, N. J., yard of Federal Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Corp., whose president, L. H. Korndorff, has rejected recommendations of the National Defense Mediation Board in the company's dispute with CIO shipworkers.

ter committees of the Bucks county American Red Cross.

Colonel Williams explained that various refugee housing surveys are being made and that in case it should be necessary to move people out of the Atlantic coast line territory, Bucks county will be ready and well-equipped to take care of her share, including transportation, medical care, housing and other necessities.

Thomas Ross, chairman of the Council, reported that the Bucks County Commissioners had passed an appropriation and paid over to the Council treasurer, J. Purdy Weiss, Doylestown, the sum of $2400 which pays the expenses of the Council up until January 1. Other money donations amounting to about $2000 and subscribed by individuals to keep the Council in operation until the appropriation was paid, have been returned to the donors.

Chairman Lewis announced that very shortly there will be an important conference held with Army officers of the Third Corps Area and Bucks County Council officials, when troop movements and Army moves will be discussed in detail.

tain concessions in Thailand, and the British Broadcasting Corporation charged that "Japanese are swarming into Bangkok in increasing numbers."

British Government authorities estimated there are some 3,000 German "tourists" and technicians in Iran. Many are said to hold positions in radio stations, telegraph offices, and on railways.

For months the British Government has maintained pressure on Iran to put a stop to this alleged infiltration of "excessive numbers" of Germans.

Latest representations told Tcheran that Russia and Britain feared the Iranians did not appreciate the urgency of the situation. "Recommendations" were repeated that "effective measures" should be taken at an early date "if the potential menace arising from the Germans' activities is to be removed."

As soon as the new British credit for Russia is nearly exhausted, it was announced, negotiations will be opened for an increase.

Russia plans to buy rubber, tin, wool, diamonds for industrial purposes, hides, and shellac. She will pay partially in platinum, hemp, glycerine, and timber.

Sir Robert Brooke-Popham, British commander-in-chief in the Far East, said reports that Britain demanded control of part of the railroad line in Thailand, and threatened force in the event of refusal, were "a typical flight of fancy."

The London Daily Mail today said that the gigantic bomb and gas-proof cellars under the Kremlin in Moscow are being prepared as a conference hall for the Anglo-Russo-American meetings, in order to avoid the possibility of the talks' being interrupted by air raids. Sleeping accommodations, said the Mail, have been arranged underground for the conference delegates.

speeding stock sedans for two full hours—afternoon only.

Wednesday is to be "Doylestown Day" when nearly all business houses in Doylestown and nearby towns will close at noon.

Again an elaborate stage show has been booked for the enjoyment of the night fair's patrons. This year the brand new Broadway show, "Revue Moderne" will be featured before the grandstand every night. The day and night grandstand attractions are: The California Skyettes, Watkins' Trained Animals, the Skating Carters and the Madison Square Garden Band—undoubtedly the greatest combination of acts the management has ever presented.

The amount of premiums offered ex-hibitors has been slightly increased and this should have the tendency to draw even more and better exhibits than usual. Doylestown has already been known as a "Farmer's Fair," and this year there has been a greatly increased demand for space by concerns wishing to exhibit farm machinery as well as other merchandise.

Premium list and entry blanks may be secured by writing the Secretary, J. Allen Gardy, 28 W. State St., Doylestown, Pa.

Entries in all departments close Tuesday, Sept. 2nd, at 6 p. m. except in the livestock classes which close Sept. 1. There is no entrance fee in any except the livestock departments.

All exhibits entered must be delivered to the respective departments on the Fair Grounds after 9 a. m. and before 5 p. m., Monday, September 8th, with the exception of poultry and rabbits which will be received up until 10 p. m. Exhibits in the flower show will

Defenders Like These Papers, Army Men Say

Nothing makes a selective service man in camp happier than a letter from home or a home-town newspaper in the daily mail, army officials said recently after an extensive survey.

Next in order, the selective service youth likes sweets such as candy, cookies and chocolates—and chewing gum!

Officers say that on the march the gum helps keep the boys from drinking too much water and from dipping into their lunch ration.

Other offerings which bring a smile of pleasure to the enrollee include a general repertoire of utilities among which are books of stamps, flashlights, a towel now and then, toile, articles, and reading materials.

Officers say that if relatives want to be sure their addressee gets what's mailed to him, they should address the letter or package in this way: Name first, his company or battery second, his regiment third, and, lastly the name of the post office.
